Spectrum has over the past 12 months embarked on a journey to grow our impact and make our voice heard 11

Building a truly inclusive and multicultural Australia is not merely an outcome of demographic changes and high level, government policies. In today's challenging environment, the future success of Australia's multiculturalism requires both strong voices and impactful programs that respond to emerging developments and trends, and enable our migrant and refugee communities to fully participate in Australia's social, economic and cultural life.

Spectrum has over the past 12 months embarked on a journey to grow our impact and make our voice heard.

We started with the challenging tasks of strengthening our foundations and consolidating what we do best. With a new CEO and Executive Team in place, we reflected on how we could maximise the growth and impact potential of existing programs and worked on improving our internal governance and risk management systems and capability.

We started to explore the possibilities of new connections and partnerships that will help meet new demands and extend our influence. All of this work is ongoing.

Our Settlement Team successfully retendered to provide services under the Settlement Engagement and Transition Support (SETS) program for the next 3 years. The new program expands our reach and provides an important platform from which we can build.

Focusing on the future, the Board, together with our Leadership Team and Staff, engaged in a series of collaborative discussions to reset our purpose and strategic intent. This culminated in our new three-year Strategic Plan 2019 – 2022. Driven by innovation, diversification, and collaboration, the new strategic direction ensures that Spectrum remains at the forefront of making a difference to the lives of our migrant and refugee communities.

It has been a busy year and the effort, as always, has been a collective one.

Thank you to all my fellow Board Directors for your commitment, skills, wisdom and guidance. At Board level, we farewelled Judy MacGraw, who stepped down after three and a half years. I thank Judy for her commitment and much valued contribution, particularly as Chair of the Governance Sub Committee. We also welcomed Rebecca Power to the Board to further strengthen our capabilities, particularly around governance.

Thank you also to our various funding bodies, partners, stakeholders, and particularly our clients. Your support and trust in Spectrum is invaluable.

Finally, on behalf of the Board, I would like to thank our CEO, Bernie Nott, all of the Leadership Team, and our dedicated Staff and Volunteers for their hard work and commitment. We simply couldn't achieve what we do without your collective efforts.

The past year has been eventful; much has been achieved, and as always, there is still more to do. The coming year promises to be challenging, but guided by our purpose and aspirations there is much to look forward to.

ceo's report

2018/19 was a year for new beginnings and exploring new horizons at Spectrum.

At Spectrum, we celebrate diversity and deeply care about inclusion. Today Australia is a more diverse society than ever before. Almost 7M Australians (28% of the total population) were born overseas and a further 21% are second generation Australians.

During the year, we found that our society's cohesion was tested by local and international events such as the Christchurch tragedy and the increasingly contested global and national politics that is immigration policy. At these times, we saw the barriers to inclusion resurfacing and doubled down in our work to showcase the richness of our diversity, the human potential that resides in the refugees and migrants that we work with and we reminded our world that the Australia's social and economic fabric has been shaped by its program of migration and settlement.

Spectrum's success and longevity is a testament to its ability to constantly adapt. After a proud 38 years supporting refugees and migrants to prosper we found ourselves at another time when we needed to adapt our services to the change happening around. It was time to embark on new beginnings.

In 2018/19, we took on an expanded geographic footprint under the Commonwealth's Settlement Engagement and Transition Support (SETS) Program of refugee settlement, seeded new partnerships and programs and continued to develop our Humanitarian Settlement (HSP) and Community Support (CSP) programs and migration services. The expansion of these programs heralded an opportunity to rethink our approach around the principles of integrated service responses, social and economic inclusion and specialist support.

Everyday at Spectrum we are inspired by the talented and resilient people walking through our doors. Refugees and migrants with career dreams and a passion to apply their entrepreneurial creativity to their ideas. Too often, we find barriers getting in their way. According to the Centre for Policy Development, only 17% of refugees are in paid work after being in Australia for 18 months, and many, particularly women, are forced to accept work that is below their skills level. Employment and economic participation is a cornerstone of successful settlement, but with a slowing economy and the prospect of rising unemployment, we recognise the need to adapt and deepen our capacity to respond. This gave rise to an exciting alliance with Refugee Talent where together we developed a multi-faceted approach securing employment outcomes that will be launched in the New Year.

In 2018/19 our work with people from diverse backgrounds who are ageing and living with disability continued to expand. We extended our home care, respite and social support group programs and prepared for the introduction of new aged care standards. Our Multicultural Home Support Service (MHSS) reset its focus on creating pathways to employment and enabling our service partners to access high quality, responsive and culturally aligned carers.

These programs continued to adapt and enhance quality and practice as we were reminded that community expectations are changing through the introduction of new standards and Royal Commissions into mental health, aged care and disability services. Spectrum welcomes the opportunity to bring the voice of our clients to these forums to shape improved and more inclusive services.

At Spectrum we recognise that what we do is complex and no one organisation or level of government can do it effectively alone. We value our many partners and I wish to acknowledge what each brings to our work

I would also like to acknowledge our Board and wonderful Team. Our Team of over 230 staff bring a unique ability to walk alongside people with empathy and understanding as together we navigate the complexities of settlement and the journey through life in a new culture. I had the pleasure to publicly recognise members of our Support Worker Team for their loyalty and service over many years. The results of our 2019 Diversity and Inclusion Staff Survey affirmed our Teams deep engagement with our Purpose and their commitment to inclusion.

As the 2018/19 year ended, I was excited to join with our Board to launch Spectrum's Strategic Direction 2019-2022 – 'Harnessing the collective power of our diversity for an inclusive Australia.' We are embarking on an exciting pathway to be a growing and impactful enterprise. We aspire to a profoundly inclusive Australia, a place where the extraordinary diversity of people enhances the lives of all. The future will see Spectrum reach out to people of all refugee and migrant backgrounds, provide access to a support network, enable successful participation and inclusion for an enriched and diverse Australia. I look forward to sharing more about our Strategic Direction in the coming months.

in the spotlight

With evidence indicating that one in 10 Australians experience feelings of isolation and loneliness, connections matter. Research concludes that connecting with family, friends and the community provide people with happiness, security, support and a sense of purpose.

'Connections and feeling at home' is front of mind for Spectrums 21 Planned Activity Groups (PAGs) delivered to seven nationalities: Italian, Vietnamese, Filipino, Chinese, Macedonian, Polish and Punjabi.

Every Wednesday for the past seven years, the Chinese PAG provides a pick-up and drop-off service to Chinese residents in and around the South Morang area.

For many, the company and connections makes a world of difference. Not only is there no language barrier which enables them to understand each other, they have also become an extension of each other's family providing support, social interaction and information necessary to community integration.

Susan has been attending the group for the last four years. This group is an integral part of her life in here Australia. From good coffee, lunch and conversation, Susan enjoys the social outings, the community information and the exercise classes. "The most important thing in a community like this is having people around to support and engage you," says Susan. "Taking care of each other keeps you alive and healthy."

Susan's story is typical of those who enjoy the PAGs. Spectrum has designed these groups to enhance people's independence by promoting physical activity, cognitive stimulation, good nutrition, emotional wellbeing and social inclusion. People with carers can also benefit from attending PAGs, specifically designed to support care relationships.

It is anticipated that by 2021, 30% of our population over the age of 65 years will be people who were born overseas.

For people from cultural and linguistically diverse backgrounds, a sense of loss of one's own culture and values can also emerge as they grow older, further contributing to feelings of isolation and loneliness.

With more studies discovering how senior communities can be designed to maximise sharing, friendship, health, and happiness; Spectrum continues to advocate for senior citizens, promoting independent living, as well as providing respite and support for carers groups offering them a range of social and cultural activities in a relaxed and fun environment.

What could be better than a great cup of coffee and chatting with your friends?

successful settlement journey

Ruth arrived in Australia in July 2019, with her husband and three children. In Ethiopia, Ruth and her husband, both being Engineers, successfully ran their own engineering firm, holding major road and rural infrastructure contracts with the Eritrean Government. With political volatility and issues with ethnicity and religion, Ruth realised her family was in danger. After Ruth spent some time in prison because of her ethnicity, she realised that it was not safe to remain in Ethiopia.

Upon her arrival in Australia, Ruth was introduced to Spectrum and was assigned a Case Manager, Mark Abernethy and a Case Worker, Ban Mohammed. "Both Mark and Ban, have been so helpful with our settlement into the community. They have visited me at home, assisted me with navigating community programs, English classes and being part of the local child maternity program for my 10 month old. They have helped me with Medicare, accessing the dentist and provided invaluable support to my family and I."

Spectrum recognises that employment is a cornerstone of settlement success, we are working together with Ruth to scope out suitable employment opportunities. This next part of Ruth's settlement journey will enable her to continue her engineering career.

Ruth's story is one of many that Spectrum is proud to be a part of. We continue to connect the newly arrived with services, creating opportunities and pathways, assisting them to find the road to fulfilling their dreams of a successful settlement in Australia.

left to right seated Nesan Naidoo, Moreno Grison, Claire Bourke and Bernie Nott. Diversity and multiculturalism are cornerstones of Australia's future prosperity and social cohesion. Given the challenging social and economic landscape which we find ourselves in today, there is still much work to do if we are to fully realise the potential of our diversity. I deeply care about fostering an inclusive and intercultural Australia that both builds on the legacy of past generations of migrants and harnesses the potential, and contribution, of our more recently arrived migrant and refugee communities. As a Director, I am strongly committed to ensuring Spectrum is at the forefront of improving the lives of our multicultural communities and making a difference to their migrant journey.

Moreno Grison

I care deeply about contributing towards the cause of making Australia home for our refugee and migrant community and the beacon of hope that they will become for future generations. This is food for the soul and a reward that cannot be acquired by material means and adds to the purpose and meaning of my life. As a melting pot of the various cultures and ethnicities that now call Australia home and the fabric of our society that is richer for the migrant contribution; I am privileged and honoured to be a part of Spectrum and its Board.

Nesan Naidoo

As a board member I am deeply passionate about building an inclusive and diverse society. Our purpose at Spectrum is that all new Australians feel welcome and can access the services they need to successfully settle and thrive in this wonderful country. Our Team have an opportunity to connect and make a significant or small difference to lives of new Australians and their families.

Claire Bourke

Connectedness and a sense of belonging is essential to our mental, physical and spiritual wellbeing and something that Spectrum champions in our purpose. Being involved in an organisation that actively drives this purpose is a privilege and an honour.

Rebecca Power

All of us Australians were migrants and refugees once. Spectrum plays an important role to welcome refugees and migrants into their new home. Australia. This is our act of hospitality towards those in need. Once they feel at home, they can begin to contribute towards their communities as new Australian. As a result, our nation will be richer economically, culturally, and spiritually.

Chris Baring-Gould

Spectrum has provided me with an opportunity to promote and support my reality of all-inclusive Australia. The cultural diversity of this land has enriched my life beyond my belief and imagination. I want every person who calls Australia home to experience the same in their own unique way.

Pal Singh

our staff

One of my biggest joys in life is bringing a broken family together. There is nowhere on this whole world that I was able to do it. Spectrum is the only place where I felt that I could make a huge difference in people's lives. No other place could contain my happiness seeing a family coming together after war tearing them apart. This is what inspires me to come to work every day!

Abeer Elmobayed,

Migration Agent

What inspires me is that I'm out in the community and lending a helping hand where most needed – especially to those who are vulnerable. I take great comfort in knowing that I've brought a ray of sunshine to their life and for me it is the most rewarding just to see them smile.

Rosa Rossi, Support Worker

What inspires me is that knowing that each day I come to work, our Team makes a life changing difference at someone's home. Getting to hear the amazing experiences and challenges our Support Workers face on a daily base is also key to our successes! I believe I have been given a rare opportunity to give back to our communities - especially those who sacrificed and left behind so much to make Australia the place we all call home!

Aiche Merhi.

MHSS Care Administrator

As a Groupwork Facilitator, I have the privilege of meeting families that range from being newly arrived to those that have resettled here for over 10 years. I am always in awe of the resilience of our clients and their ability to adapt to their new environments despite the hardship they face. I admire how they are able to maintain their cultural and religious values without compromise as minorities, which is truly a learning and inspiration for me as someone who also had struggled with my identity as a person of colour and a former refugee. One of the programs I facilitate which further supports their values is Spectrum's Parenting in a New Culture (PINC) program. The main pillar of PINC is to remind families to embrace their new culture without losing their original.

Amona Hassab.

Group Facilitator

I find inspiration in every aspect of working with clients particularly working with newly arrived fathers who are devoted, dedicated and passionate in being a healthy role model for their children and have a respectful relationship within their family and community. I'm inspired by the tangible outcomes that I can see every week within Fathers Group and positive changes that I can make in family's lives to raise children in a new culture confidently and successfully. Working with Fathers makes me feel satisfied and motivated to come to work with an optimistic outlook for the future of newly arrived clients and society.

financials

After another year of successful client outcomes, the financial position for Spectrum continues to remain strong.

The operating result achieved in 2019 was well up on previous years with a surplus of over $327K, realised before write downs attributable to a new Accounting standard requiring credit losses to be recognised and additional payments made to align with the EBA for Support Workers. This resulted in a net deficit of just under $60K for the financial year 2019.

Total income increased for the year by over $800K, driven by Grant funding from increased CHSP sources. The positive revenue trend also continued with Fee for Service income.

In summary, the net equity of $2.35M remains in a solid position.
